Who's Attending?

The Aviation Career Symposium is open for anyone to participate. The following will be in attendance:

Students - High school and college students from across the country and around the world to learn career readiness tips, meet outstanding industry leaders, gain understanding of career specialties, and receive advice for jobs which may open in one to five years.

Schools - Introduce the aviation industry, its leaders, various job specialties, and keen career advice to students.

Job Seekers - Current students, recent graduates, and those seeking career changes and advancements can develop professional relationships with industry leaders, connect with employment recruiters, and learn about job openings.

Employers - Companies and their representatives from businesses and organizations in the United States and other countries can meet candidates who may be available to fill immediate openings to those entering the workforce in one to five years.

Recruiters - Whether on staff with a company or representing an employment service, these leaders can make connections with bright new talent for rewarding open positions.

Industry Leaders - What an opportunity to describe the many different aspects of this incredible industry, provide mentoring guidance to those seeking employment within the industry, and make new lifelong connections.
